

Children Learn To Hate People Of Other Lands

Heuser And Estall Deliver Papers

CULTURE JOINS RACES TOGETHER

Foran and Snyder Chosen as Delegates to Toronto Assembly

"There cannot be great men without national culture, and a national culture is impossible without great men," stated Heinrich Heuser, Arts '32 in a paper delivered before the League of Nations Club last night in Strathcona Hall.

Heuser's paper dealt with an international aspect of education. The speaker, a native of Germany, is a comparative newcomer to Canada and therefore an authority on his subject.

He stated that the outbreak of the Great War showed up national prejudices and race hatreds, but after the Armistice the idea of international peace and intellectual cooperation was being advanced by many noted writers. Count Coudenhove-Kalergi was one of the first to work out a plan for the United States of Europe. One of the forces working against international understanding is the spirit of chauvinism instilled into young children. Several examples were given of text-books which are likely to foster hatred in the minds of Canadian children.

The speaker went on to show that nations are not united by race but by culture and intellectual understanding.

Estall's Paper

Martin Estall delivered the second paper of the evening on the subject "Intellectual Co-operation". The paper dealt with the great strides made by the Educational Committee of the League of Nations mentioning the Committee's school in Geneva where students are taught the workings of the League as an example of a fine forward step in the direction of international co-operation.

At the close of the meeting, Philip Foran and Jack Snyder were chosen to represent the club at the Model Assembly of the League of Nations at the University of Toronto, on Feb. 21, 22, 23.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting and a lively discussion took place on the two papers of the evening.

Drug Dance Plans Are Almost Ready

Prof. Moore and Dr. Hatcher Will be Present

Following up the dazzling success of last year, the Pharmaceutical Society will hold its annual Dance on Wednesday Feb. 12, in the Plaza of the Mount Royal Hotel. The dancing will be of informal nature and will begin at 9.00 p.m. During the course of the evening, souvenir gifts will be distributed.

The patrons and patronesses of the evening, will be Prof. and Mrs. A. J. Moore, and Dr. and Mrs. Hatcher. Joseph Kruger and his orchestra will be in attendance.

The price of the tickets is set at $1.00, and they may be obtained from M. H. Fleishman c/o Tobin, in the Medical Building, Bill Gentlemen, or the Tuck Shop.

McGill Players' Club Wants Men To Help Advertising Committee

WHEN the "Insect Play" was produced by the Players' Club last year, the attention of downtown firms was drawn to the great value of the advertising space contained in the Programme. This provides a certain means whereby they may reach the Student Body. Since that production, new advertisements have been coming in from all parts of the city, but students are needed to solicit still more for it is partly to them that the executive look to obtain the financial backing, without which no play can succeed.

Possibly the apparent difficulty of interesting advertising managers has deterred those students who had thought of helping in that direction. But the popularity of preceding productions, and the very strong list of

Solitary Cells Alternative To Exams In China

TORONTO, Feb. 6.—As an alternative to writing examinations in the university, Professor G. J. Urwick suggests the old Chinese method, in commenting on criticism of examinations as a test of the students' ability.

He observes, "If not examinations, then I fancy the only alternative is the old Chinese method. Shut each candidate for a fortnight in a cell, and let him write all he knows. The strain itself will be a test of capacity; perhaps the strain upon the wretched examiners is an added advantage. But would our undergraduates welcome the change?"

Professor Urwick agrees that the method of testing students is imperfect. "But examinations are not only the test of a student's knowledge, they also test his ability to use and apply his knowledge," he says. Now it is true that some very good students make a poor showing in examinations. They fail to do themselves justice. But after all can we call a man quite first class unless he can meet the test of bringing his knowledge to bear effectively — at short notice, at a critical moment in difficult circumstances. That is the test of efficiency in life."

Meds To Stage Annual Dinner

Banquet to be Held Tomorrow Night

IN WINDSOR HOTEL

Stephen Leacock Will Be Chief Speaker of Evening

Stephen Leacock, William Dow professor of political economy, will be the chief speaker at the annual dinner of the Medical students to be held tomorrow evening in the Windsor Hotel.

The dinner promises to be a brilliant affair, keeping up the old traditions of the medical students of McGill. Preparations have been going ahead actively for some time, and the organizers guarantee that a menu fine enough to satisfy the most exacting epicure will greet the diners on Saturday evening.

Besides the main speech by Dr. Leacock, Sir Arthur Currie, Principal of the university, and E. W. Beatty have consented to give short addresses. Other speakers will include representatives from the universities of Toronto, Queen's, Western, and Montreal; Dean C. F. Martin of the Medical Faculty; E. C. Laurell, president of the final year in Medicine; and H. S. Greene, Medicine '30. C. S. Mirabile, chairman of the dinner committee will preside.

Forty-Eighth Dinner
This dinner will be the forty-eighth annual function of its kind, a record probably not surpassed by any other undergraduate body at McGill. In the past a very high standard for these dinners has been set, and certainly will not be lowered this year. Besides the speeches there will be a lot of other material to delight and warm the heart, as any medical student will testify. The dinner has always been one of the high-lights of the medical year ever since its inception, drawing the whole body of undergraduates in medicine together around the festive board.

Tables may be reserved at Crawford's office.

French Articles Distinguished By Finish And Taste

French Idealism and Imagination Shown in Products Peculiar to France

VILLARD SPOKE

French Excel in Making Dresses, Funny Pictures, Jam and Rochfort Cheese

"La France qui travaille" was revealed to the Societe Francaise in an address given yesterday by Prof. Villard. The meeting before which Prof. Villard spoke was held in the common room of the R.V.C.; and, following the address, tea was served.

Prof. Villard confessed that his aim in choosing such a topic was to try to give to students, who are likely to travel, some idea of the France which the Cook's Tour fails to discover. He then went on to enumerate and sketch briefly typical French articles of manufacture, and the methods of production. He assured his audience that he had no intention of proclaiming French articles as superior to all others; but that he wished merely to point out those which distinctly bear the mark of the French handicraftsman.

France is Industrious

He closed with a reading from a modern French author who sees in the Frenchman one to whom the "foyer" is something even more sacred than the equivalent "home" is to the Englishman. Such in Prof. Villard's opinion is the true France — la France qui travaille — which the existence of the average tourist fails even to suspect.

Among the articles enumerated by Prof. Villard were the world-renowned dresses, extraordinarily fine lace, delicate silk fabrics, ribbons of the finest texture pictures, veritable works of art, done wholly in ribbon, perfumes manufactured from the flowers themselves, toys of the more artistic and durable variety, furniture and tapestries in themselves works of art; and finally Rochfort cheese, the distinguishing characteristic of which is due to its remaining several weeks in certain underground caves found only in a particular district of France.

The meeting concluded with a tea.

Yellow Journalism Subject Of Paper

House of Commons Club to Meet Next Monday

"Modern Propaganda" and "Yellow Journalism" are the subjects of the two papers to be read by Elsie Woodley and Annie Rowley, respectively, at the meeting of the House of Commons Club, which will be held at the home of Professor and Mrs. Adair, on Monday next, February 10.

Members of the club may look forward to entertainment of unusual interest as both Miss Woodley and Miss Rowley have spent much time gathering the material for their subjects.

In view of the reputation of the two speakers and the general interest of the matters under consideration, the papers will undoubtedly be rich in information and provocative of discussion.

Montreal Will Have Delegate At Havana

Dr. E. Saint-Jacques Leaving for Congress

The University of Montreal will have a representative in the form of Dr. Eugene Saint-Jacques, at the University World Congress which will take place from February 29 to 25 to celebrate the bi-centenary of the University of Havana, Cuba.

Invitations have been sent to all the great universities of the world reading similarly to the following: "As all first-class universities will be represented, it is expected that the University of Montreal will send delegates."

Dr. Saint-Jacques is Professor of Clinical Surgery in the University of Montreal, Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons, and member of the Society of Clinical Surgery.

Philosophical Society

"The Philosophical Aspects of Education" will be the subject of an address

Edmund Collard To Give Talk On Augustan Poetry

"THE Dryness, Coarseness and Bitterness of Augustan Poetry" will be the subject of a lecture to be given by Edmund Collard at the meeting of the English Literature Society this afternoon at 4.00 of the Arts Building.

The speaker is thoroughly familiar with his subject, and has made some valuable research on the influence of eighteenth century history and intellectual atmosphere on the poetry of the age. He is of the opinion that the characteristics of Restoration and eighteenth century poetry are representative of the cynicism and skepticism of those periods. The dryness and bitterness of Augustan poetry, he thinks, can be traced to the critical, analytical spirit of the age, and the coarseness to its moral laxity.

Collard, who is an honour student in English and History, his distinguished himself at college as a debater, and was last year winner of the Papineau shield. He is one of the leading figures in the Mock Parliament, and has been chosen representative of his class in the forthcoming inter-class debates to be held in Moyse Hall.

Annual Offers Final Chance

Last Day For Pictures and Write-ups

5 P.M. ZERO HOUR

Twenty-six Clubs and Societies Still Delinquent

As has been previously announced in these columns this is the closing date for making arrangements for pictures at Notman's. The books close at 5.00 this afternoon and any club which has not accounted for itself before that time is definitely out of "Old McGill 1930." Time and again warning has been given both in the news and in the advertising columns and if anyone is disappointed he will have only himself to blame.

Before 6.00 the final list of all graduating seniors will have gone to the engravers and there can no such thing as a late insertion. Any seniors who have their own glossies or who have any special reason for not leaving their peace at Notman's may make a note for the Annual Board in the Union Tuck Shop sometime before 6.00 this afternoon.

The following are still delinquent:

- SPORTS
Senior football.
- CLUBS
Chemical Industry.
Medical Society.
McGill Historical Club.
Light Aeroplane Club.
Glider Club.
Mining & Metallurgical.
Philosophical Society.
Physical Society.
Political Economy Club.
Sociological Society.
Maccabean Society.
Masonic Club.
Union House Committee.
Junior Prom Committee.
McGill Chess Club.
Debating Union Society.
McGill University Band.
Red and White Revue of 1930.
Science Undergraduate Society.
McGill Library School Alumni.
McGill School of Physical Education Undergraduate Society.
La Societe Francaise.
R.V.C. Music Club.
McGill Women Student's Society.
R.V.C. Undergraduate Society.
The Commercial Society.

This list was compiled in haste and without due reference to the proper authorities, so that any club which finds itself mentioned, but which has already had its picture taken need have no fear.

It would be useless to make a detailed list of delinquent seniors. Those who have not yet been taken know the hours, the procedure and the price, there blood be upon their own heads.

A special extension of time has been granted to teams whose members have not yet been definitely picked.

There will be no appeal after 5.00 this afternoon.

Address which will be given by Dr. C. W. Hendel at the next meeting of the McGill Philosophical Society, to be held in Room 44 of the Arts Building on Monday, February 19, at 7.30 p.m.

Physical Tests Now Necessary For Employees

Foundation of All Industrial Medical Service is Prevention

AIDS EFFICIENCY

Dr. Haldimand Describes Red Cross Methods in Factories

"The industrial world is now convinced that measures dealing with the health and safety of employees are an absolute necessity in industry," said Dr. A. W. Haldimand, medical director of the Northern Electric system of Canada. He was speaking on the subject of "Preventive Medicine and Preventive Surgery in Industry" at the Mechanics Institute last night.

In a large industry every branch of medical surgery must be employed in order to deal with the multitude of causes brought to the attention of the Red Cross section of the organization. This most essential division must be under the supervision of a competent medical superintendent, stated Dr. Haldimand. One of the first requirements of this department is a medical examination of all employees and the re-examination of old employees, every six months. This examination must be thorough and complete thus taxing the medical staff of a large industry to its fullest extent.

Business Reasons

The business reasons for these examinations are numerous, continued the speaker. The medical man is no expert that he is able to pick out those applicants seeking employment, who are of unfit temperament and who are physically defective. The cost of employing diseased or unfit person is very great, for after he has been trained to do a certain job and is then found incapable he must be replaced at a tremendous sacrifice.

At one time the feeling prevailed that physical examinations were disagreeable to applicants. However, during Dr. Haldimand's experience at the Northern Electric, while examining from 25,000 to 30,000 candidates he found that very few were averse to his actions. Only 3% of the candidates were rejected.

Cast Announced For Players Club Drama

Actors Given Definite Roles in Play

The definite cast for the Players' Club production "The Witch" was announced yesterday afternoon. The director, Cecil West, has been trying out at least two actors for each part, and has only decided on the final casting within the last day or so.

There still remain a number of minor parts in the mob scene to be filled which do not require such careful consideration. Now that the main parts are filled, concentrated rehearsing will be the order of the day until the production of the play on Feb. 20, 21, and 22.

The cast, as announced yesterday will be as follows:—

- Abolita Cluny Dale
Merete Kay Pinkey
Anna Phoebe Nobbs
Claus Hugh Trimmingham
Martha Charles Yule
Laurentius Arthur Mannion
Johannes Leslie Draper
Jorgen Ned Harkin
Bishop James Harvey
Gerd
Second Guard Frank Whitton

Prof. Stanley to Give Lecture on Herodotus

The second of a series of lectures on "Six Greek Authors" is to be given this afternoon by Carlston Stanley, Professor of Greek, in the Arts Building at 4.30 o'clock. The subject of the lecture will be "Herodotus, the First World Historian". Admission is open to all.

Debating Union Executive

A meeting of the Debating Union Executive will be held this afternoon in the smoking room of the Law Building at four o'clock. As important business is to be discussed, all members are requested to arrive punctually.

Debaters From U.S. To Invade Canada Shortly

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Two U.S. college students will leave shortly for a debating tour of seven Canadian Universities under the auspices of the National Student Federation of America. One of the debaters is from Wesleyan University, and the other from Williams College.

Both men are well known for their oratorical prowess in their respective colleges, and both have taken an outstanding part in inter-university debating in the Eastern States.

One of the students is Milton H. Williams, son of President Williams of Ohio Northern University, who lives in Ada, O. and is taking a course at Wesleyan University. The other is William C. Erskine, of Williams College who lives in Bronxville, N.Y.

They will debate with teams of seven Canadian universities, Dalhousie University, Mount Allison University, Acadia University, St. Francis Xavier University, University of New Brunswick, Bishop's University, and the University of Montreal. McGill is not included in the list, although the debaters are to be in Montreal.

N.F.C.U.S. Offer Students Tour

To Visit England, Scotland and European Countries

WILL SAIL IN JUNE

Oxford, London, Paris, Brussels, Are Cities On Itinerary

A large tour through Great Britain and Europe, which starts from this city in June on the Canadian Pacific liner Minnedosa, has been planned by the National Federation of Canadian University Students. The arrangements are being made under the supervision of A. Gordon Burns, the Travel Secretary at Hart House, Toronto University, on behalf of the Federation, which is under the patronage of E. W. Beatty, Chancellor of McGill University, Sir Robert Falconer, President of Toronto University, and General Sir Arthur Currie.

Viscount Cecil, Lord Balfour, the Earl of Sandwich, Viscount Grey, Professor Gilbert Murray and some prominent educationalists hold honorary office in the British counterpart of the Federation, the National Union of Students, and head the organization which cooperates with regard to activities in the British Isles.

Will Sail to Glasgow

The Minnedosa leaves Montreal on June 21st, arriving in Glasgow on the 23rd. Students of the University of Glasgow will show the party round the city, and then the party will pass through the Trossachs to Edinburgh, from thence through the Lake District, to Chester, Stratford-on-Avon, Oxford and London where they will stay for a week. On the Continent the tour will take in the Hague, Amsterdam, Scheveningen, Brussels, Bruges, Ghent, Paris and Versailles, finishing at Cherbourg, where the party will embark on the Empress of France for Quebec which will be reached on August the 2nd. A special train will convey the students from Quebec to Montreal.

Since the last notice of this tour appeared in the "Daily", it is stated that there has been a steady increase in the bookings at the Toronto Office of the Federation, and this tour promises to be of the most successful arranged by the N.F.C.U.S.

Man Has Power To Control His Future Destiny

No One is Slave of Fate, Says Levy and White

FORAN JUDGES

Alchin and Lusher Prove That Education Makes People Unhappy

"Resolved that education leads to unhappiness" and "Resolved that a normal man is master of his fate" were the two resolutions which were successfully upheld by Alchin and Lusher against Dunder and MacFarlane and by Levy and White against Biker and McLeod, respectively, at the Arts '32 debates yesterday afternoon. Both debates were judged by P. F. Foran, President of the Debating Union.

Alchin, leader of the affirmative in the first debate, was of the opinion that education brings disillusionment to the school-boy. The college graduate is an introvert. He knows too much about everything that he is unable to rightly judge what he is best suited for. The man who looks for happiness in education is doomed to disappointment.

Health Necessary to Happiness

Dunder, leader of the negative, stated that it is education that raises man above the beast. Health is necessary to happiness, and it is through education that one learns how to take care of one's health. Mental health, too, is necessary to happiness. Material things are fleeting, but no one can take away one's education.

Lusher, speaking for the affirmative stated that the lower classes are held in their present position on account of the middle classes being better educated and holding an unfair advantage over them. Education in a university is merely enduring present hardships in the hope of future advantages.

MacFarlane, last speaker on the negative, said that nothing that is stagnant is fragrant, and without education the world becomes stagnant and useless. Latent talents are

Representing McGill

It will be a distinct mark against McGill's name when at the Model League of Nations for Students, to be held in Toronto this month, there will be no representative from the Students' Society. They have been invited to send a representative but the invitation has been refused. Quite recently the Society has been asked to send a representative to the Osgoode Hall Dance and the invitation has been accepted.

The Model League at Toronto has been sponsored by the League of Nations' Society of the University, with the close co-operation of the Students' Administrative Council there. A fund is being raised by them for the furtherance of the project, and the University authorities will be among the speakers. With such support as this we feel that the Council has decided wisely in the interests of the students of McGill.

True the decision on the matter was only lost by one vote but the decision reflects the opinion of the Students' Society and other universities represented there will not know how the decision was reached. The McGill League of Nations' Club are still interested in the matter and are seeking outside funds for the sending of a delegate, but to the people who are approached upon the matter the attitude of the major society will not be very comprehensible.

The Students' Society can afford to send a representative to a social function in Toronto but not to a matter in which we, as students, are involved, being it is hoped leaders of the coming years, for McGill holds that name, and as citizens of a country that is a member of the League at Geneva. We do not deny that as students of the leading university of Canada we have not social obligations to fulfill and that we should keep our name as high as it ever was in that direction, but there are other obligations, with results far more reaching than social ones, which we should consider out duty to meet.

During the fall our University conferred upon one of the leaders of international goodwill the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws for his good work. The students themselves joined in a spontaneous outburst at the occasion of that special convocation. It would seem that the feeling shown then has cooled down, and the results will be known to the representatives of the other Universities assembled at Toronto.

The Art of Compromising

SOME people there are who would rather have no bread than half a loaf any day. They stoutly maintain that one must stand by one's principles, and never give ground to an opponent. If one's stand results in a deadlock, well and good. Deadlocks are necessary evils.

It is very difficult sometimes to know just whether it is right to maintain a stand or to compromise with an opponent. It is impossible to judge by public opinion, because there are always some who designate a determined front obstinacy, and an effort toward conciliation, weakness.

That promising is indeed an art will be sadly admitted by any who have daily to make important decisions. There are no guiding and inflexible principles which one may utilize in all instances. At the best one may have but a rule-of-thumb.

The only way in which one may gauge a compromise is by submitting it to the test of pragmatism—if we do such a thing, will it work out well or ill? And yet who can say in advance what will be the effects ten years hence of what we do to-day? We can only visualize the situation before us in our minds and attempt to judge by the probable results.

A very interesting study might be made of compromises which have taken place in history and their effects. The Quebec Act alone would furnish much material for investigation. What would have happened if it had been less lenient? The various peace treaties which have taken place in the world in the last twelve hundred years and the mutual conciliations arising from trade disputes of later days would be fertile topics of discussion.

That compromises may have their value and may well justify the conciliations which must be made, would, we think, be opinion reached after such a study. A good compromise has the notable advantage of embodying the best features of both sides of the question.

The Whispering Gallery

DUE to the coldness of the weather during the past few days the Daily Dragon has had perforce to stay within his lair, and what news has been gleaned, came only after feats of daring on the part of the Dragon himself, when he braved the crowd in Childs last Friday night to gather many and varied statistics. However, on consultation with the Dragon's legal advisers it has been deemed wiser not to give these little anecdotes the full glare of publicity and, like certain writings on the Walls of the Daily office, they are only for the select few.

Unfortunately one of the Dragon's most trusted and valued cohorts saw fit to celebrate his birthday last night and this column when hardly dunn was very nearly finished. But now to the main business of the evening and let the tear drops fall where they may.

Dear Sir:

I should like to take this opportunity of thanking the members of the Book Exchange Committee for their hearty co-operation during the seasons of activity.

We have been fortunate in obtaining the help of certain students from time to time when we required it, and I should like them to know that their valuable time given to the operation of the Exchange was greatly appreciated by the Committee: Gerald Hunter, Nowers Asbury, Phil Matthams, Walter Houghton, etc.

Sincerely,
Robert Picard
Chairman, Book Exchange Committee.

CHURCH-GOING STUDENTS
(Stanford Daily)

From Villanova College in Pennsylvania comes the word that only 200,000 of America's more than a million students attend some form of religious observation, and, in addition, that institutions of higher learning fail to emphasize religion now as they have in the past.

The report seems to cast aspersions upon the American student as lacking all reverence for the divine.

Since the beginning of the twentieth century, and more particularly during and following the World War, the churches have become estranged from the students and it is only in the parochial schools or in institutions requiring attendance at chapel that the younger generation may be seen.

This is termed the age of specialization and because churches do not teach economics and animal biology it is no logical brief for those who argue the universities should concentrate their efforts to develop them. The universities are improving their courses of study and consequently attract more pupils every year. The churches remain in the same rut and lose their appeal to the young man and woman.

ARE POOR STUDENTS GOOD?

(Syracuse Daily Orange)

An article was recently printed in the daily newspapers with these striking headlines: "High Salaries Won By Bad Students." The news story was the result of an address delivered by Mr. G. C. Brandenburg, Purdue University, before a convention of leaders in education.

Mr. Brandenburg told the delegates that five-year tests at Purdue showed a definite tendency to mark scholastic attainment almost as a detriment toward material gain in later life. The quoted extensively in many newspapers, we do not believe that Mr. Brandenburg was seeking publicity by announcing so startling a fact. His evidence is based on actual experience of Purdue students, and cannot be passed off with a smile.

Indeed, if we are to respect the value of tests and of statistics, we must ask ourselves what the significance of Mr. Brandenburg's evidence is. Does it prove that college is a waste of time, from the point of view of earning a living? If there is any truth in Mr. Brandenburg's summary of his speech, "It pays to be impressive, agreeable, and not too intellectual," wouldn't it be more profitable to join a social club instead of going to college?

These questions might be irksome to many college students. But we do not intend to dwell on the advantages and disadvantages of a college education at this point; that is up to the individual to decide. Mr. Brandenburg's facts are indicative of one truth, however, which we can and should adhere to: The development of that thing in us, which for the sake of convenience is called "personality," is more important than the development of anything else in our collegiate existence.

Over 100 years making Good Shoes for Men

Out-of-the-Ordinary Repair Service

You will find Dack's Repair Service more than just a repair department. Inasmuch as we have been making nothing but the very highest grade of men's shoes for more than 100 years, none but the very best materials and leathers are permitted to come into our factory.

These same materials and leathers are used in our repair work—the same high-class craftsmanship is employed.

The under part of the shoe is practically re-built, and when your shoes are returned to you they are as nearly like new as worn shoes can be.

The reason for this service is quite obvious. The making of high quality shoes for men is our business exclusively, and has been for more than one hundred years.

Why not phone us today? We will call for and deliver your shoes.

McGill Basketeers To Face Varsity And Western On Weekend Trip

Intercollegiate Cagers Engage Varsity Today

Redmen Play Western U. at London on Following Night

McGILL NEEDS BOTH

The McGill Intercollegiate Basketball team left the Donaventure Station late last night for Toronto where they are scheduled to meet U. of Toronto quintet league champions of last year, at the Hart House tonight. Tomorrow they entrain for London where they engage the U. of Western Ontario squad. The team is accompanied by Coach Van Wagner and Manager Mason.

A win for McGill will put the Redmen in the second place. A loss however will put the Red and White warriors in a poor position for grabbing the title and the McGill squad may be relied upon to give their best in tonight's struggle at Hart House.

The Varsity champion team have weakened through the graduation of most of its stars while the McGill squad is practically the same as that of last year. In their first league game against Western the Toronto cagers squeezed out a two point win and if this is any true indication of their play the Redmen will be favoured to capture the tilt.

With Don Young at centre, Faulkner and Small on the forward line the Redmen will present one of the greatest front lines that have ever represented McGill in the cage loop, and is sure to cause the Blue and White many anxious moments. On the defence Peiker and Rice have both shown great ability offensively as well as defensively; Rice, it will be remembered was the McGill high scorer in the game against Queen's.

The other members of the team who left last night were Moore, Calhoun and Weldon.

The team will probably line up as follows:

McGill	Varsity
Centre	Horton
Forward	Darcy
Small	O'Leary
Guard	Currie
Peiker	Sakler
Rice	Sub.
Weldon	Wood
Moore	Riggs
Calhoun	Sniderman

Fencing Orders

Dating from Friday, February 7th, and until the coming intercollegiate meet, fencing orders will not be issued through the medium of this Journal.

Physical Tests Now Necessary For Employees

Preventive medicine and preventive surgery mean the application of preventive methods to a large staff as a unit. "Let us consider the functions of the Red Cross department," Dr. Haldiman went on. "It must try to detect and remedy unfavorable conditions which tend to impair the efficiency of the workers, such as faulty lighting, improper construction of buildings, unsanitary conditions, and defective and dangerous machinery. It must recommend immediate and proper treatment for ailments of employees. Vaccination is carried out so thoroughly in this city that no danger of small-pox is anticipated. Our health department insists that all employees be vaccinated."

Dr. Haldiman concluded his lecture by illustrating the different methods for prevention of accidents by the use of guards on machinery.

Interfaculty Basketball

In a scheduled interfaculty basketball fixture yesterday afternoon the Diocesan College defeated the Presbyterian College by the score of 14-8. The Presbyterians started off on the defensive and kept steadily on Audie's trail but were unable to prevent him from scoring many of the points. Fine basketball was the order for the first period and the score at the bell was 7-2 in favour of the Diocesan boys.

The second session opened with the Presbyterians forcing the pace but good defensive work by Rolit and Bodger prevented much scoring. Syd Sharkey played a fine game in this period and did some good shooting. Audie Secker and Rolit were the stars for the winners while on the losing side the Sharkey brothers were outstanding.

Line-up: Presbyterian. Diocesan.

R.V.C. Seniors Defeat Y.W.C.A.

'Red' Junior Squad Again Defeats 'White' 36-28

R.V.C. Senior Basketball team defeated the Y.W.C.A. 44-34 last night before a large and enthusiastic crowd. The "Red" Junior squad again sent the "White" juniors down to defeat to the tune of 36-28 in the second game of the evening.

The "Y" sextette showed much improvement but were unable to cope with the steeper shooting of the McGill girls. The playing was wild and although the Red and Whites came out on top their playing was loose and their passing often wild.

The losers opened the scoring with two points but were not able to hold their lead and the R.V.C. basketeers forged ahead and maintained their advantage until the final whistle. The score at half time was 26-16.

In the final period the Blue Team showed marked improvement and for awhile had their opponents guessing. Two of their players were injured during the period and this was a decided drawback to them. The McGillites recovered during the latter part of the period and piled up a neat score in the last few minutes.

Merle Peden, long flashy jumping centre for McGill played a fast game. Helen Smart, playing in the last half, made a nice showing. Scott, centre for the Y.W.C.A. accounted for twenty of their points.

The second game between the two McGill Junior teams was closely contested and the "Whites" out for revenge after their two defeats put up a good game in the first period. At the half time the score was 14-10 in their favour.

The "Reds" recovered in the final period and soon tied the score. The "Whites" were unable to withstand their steady attack and the winners gained a lead which their opponents were unable to overcome. The final minutes of the game were fast and the playing was wild.

Commerce Sophs Lose to Meds in Exciting Game

Doctors Win Closely Contested Game on Superior Rushes and Checking

SCORE 4-2

In a fast and exciting game on the campus rink yesterday afternoon Med. 2 defeated Com. 2 by the score of 4-2. Speedy rushes were the feature of the fracas and by their superior combination the doctors kept the edge throughout.

The doctors took the lead at the start and within two minutes Chalmers had netted the rubber to put the med sophs in the lead. Play continued evenly for the next few minutes until Dubois got away and put the puck past Webster for the doctors second score. The Commerce men came back strong and near the close of the period LePine scored for the business men on a neat shot from the side.

Commerce improved considerably in the next session and both teams checked consistently; so much so that Dubois and Bowman were sent to the cooler for two minutes each. Chalmers made several good rushes for the doctors but Webster in the Commerce net succeeded in saving on each occasion. Gamble scored the next tally for the med men when he fooled Webster on a lone rush; two minutes later Bowman shot from the wing and scored the business mens second goal. Langstaff and Herscovitch got away several times for their respective teams but the goalers had hit their stride and the play continued scoreless. Webster played consistently for Commerce and was a big factor in keeping down the doctors scoring list.

Line-up: Med 2. (4) Com 2. (2)

Badminton Notes

Several rounds of the University Badminton Championship Tournaments were run off last night when the competitions really got under way at the M.H.S. Gym. Keen competition was evident in all the matches and already the tournament promises to be a success. The great interest shown is evidenced by the large number of entries, over forty players being entered.

The results in the various games were as follows:

Singles: Seely beat Tocs; Cohen beat Honeyman; Marler beat Martin.
Doubles: Hicks & Crawford beat Millen & Simpson; Ross & Martin beat Rose & Parr.

Boxers Attention

The following boxers will represent McGill at the University of New Hampshire this week-end, and will leave from the Windsor Station tonight at 9:15: Tannenbaum, Sampson, MacGregor, Greenblatt, Porteous, and Boyce.

Boxers Leave For N.H. Meet

Wilson Wins From Taylor in Eliminations by K. O

The boxers put in one of the fastest afternoons of the season yesterday in preparation for the invasion of the University of New Hampshire which takes place this week-end.

Roger Wilson and Fred Taylor provided the feature of the afternoon by fighting off their heavyweight elimination bout. Wilson was returned winner in the third round by the knock-out route. It was a wonderful battle all the way, with Taylor having the edge in the first two rounds. He still has his great style that makes him one of the best heavyweight boxers in the country, and Wilson was taking punishment. In the round, however, Wilson landed heavily on Taylors jaw and put him down for the count of nine. A few seconds later he finished it off with another terrific right hand smash.

Wilson is now the undisputed heavyweight champion of McGill. There was some talk of another battle between Wilson and Maughan, but the latter has a broken nose, the result of the Assault, and will not be able to don the gloves again this season.

The mitt-men leave for New Hampshire tonight, and realising the responsibility that rests on their shoulders they are confident of victory.

City Leaguers Play Bishops

McGill Basketeers Leave Today For Sherbrooke

TWO GAMES

While the McGill Intercollegiate basketball team is engaging the University of Toronto and Western University teams on Friday and Saturday respectively the second string squad will play the Bishop's College and Sherbrooke "Y" quintets at the Sherbrooke Armory.

The McGill second squad has been strengthened by the return of MacLean, last year regular forward of the Intercollegiate team, and the presence of Dixon and Costello will greatly increase the substitute strength. These men have attended the practices regularly during the past week; MacLean, despite the long lay-off, has not lost any of his skill in ball-handling and when he takes the floor tonight in the Eastern Townships centre he should astound the natives of that city not a little.

The strength of the Lennoxville outfit is unknown but is probably made up of former Montreal and Sherbrooke stars. The "Y" team for whom Hammond, McGill, played last year possess three good men in Bryce, McCaw and Edgar; the first two mentioned are forwards and the third is a guard.

Eleven players, Errol Amaron who is taking charge of the squad while they are in Sherbrooke, and manager Montgomery, are to take the trip. The members of the team are Sellar, Hammond, Talpis, Feigenbaum, Ross, Erskine, Stewart, MacLean, Dixon, and Costello.

All players are reminded that the train for Sherbrooke tomorrow leaves the Windsor Station at 12.30.

Schoolmen Approve Offering Of New Education Degree

Two Graduate Students to Work
For D. Ed. Award

NORMAN, Okla. Dec. 4.—(By Exchange Service)—Adoption of the plan whereby Oklahoma university offers the degree of Doctor of Education, and the enrolment of two graduate students as applicants for the degree, have brought comment from prominent state educators lauding the university's foresight in adopting a plan already proved successful at Harvard, John Hopkins, and three colleges in California.

A letter from John Vaughan, state superintendent, to Ellsworth Collings, dean of the school of education, expresses his approval of the step taken by the university faculty in that it will allow Oklahoma teachers to stay in their own state to get a doctor's degree. The problems to be studied by the graduate students will deal wholly with school problems in Oklahoma.

Another letter from J. Andrew Holley, chief high school inspector, praises the adoption of the plan in that it marks Oklahoma as the first state in the middle west to follow Harvard's successful education service study adopted 10 years ago.

The Doctor of Education degree is in no way connected with a Ph. D. degree, using education as the major study. Where the Ph. D. degree specializes in research work, the new D. Ed. degree has service as a basis for the study. There are two branches of work that can be followed: the field of teaching, and the field of administration. The degree is not conferred solely as a result of study extended over a prescribed period but is awarded after distinctive attainment in the field elected.

The two students now enrolled in the graduate work are John T. Heffley, Norman, and James H. Hodges. Norman Heffley was formerly superintendent of schools in Ponca City. He has his master's degree from He has his master's degree from Chicago university. Hodges was awarded his Oklahoma and is an assistant on the faculty in the school of education.

Man Has Power To Control His Future Destiny

to be developed. Comforts lead to happiness, discomforts to sorrow; it is only through education that the inventions which make our lives so much easier have been made possible. Furthermore, education teaches one to control his emotions.

The decision in this debate went to the affirmative.

Will Conquer Fate

White opened the second debate for the affirmative by saying that man was given a certain will-power to enable him to overcome fate and all other obstacles which might make his way difficult. As examples he cited Milton, the frontiersman of North America, Gene Tunney and George Young.

McLeod replied by asserting that the most gifted men in the world would never have gotten anywhere had not fortune and circumstances favoured them. How many can say definitely what will happen to them even a short time from now? Most of the so-called successful people owe their success to their early environment. Man is merely a creature of circumstances and environment and has practically no power over his destiny.

Brain Gives Power

Levy, second speaker of the affirmative admitted that fate plays a great part in our lives, but if a man has the will, he can overcome even fate; that is why man was given a brain. As an example, he cited Demosthenes, who, though he lapsed and stammered, developed himself into one of the greatest orators of all time, just through persevering and having the will to go through with his plan. Why are so many students going into the already over-crowded professions of law and medicine if they do not believe that they are able to overcome their apparent fate and accomplish a seemingly impossible task?

After giving his definition of "fate", Ken Baker proceeded to prove by the "law of parallel forces" that a man has very little control over his destiny as a result of the forces on him from all directions. He then showed by an animated diagram, how a man, like a molecule, is influenced by the existence and course of similar bodies around him. He compared the social system to a molecular structure, and stated that it is not man who makes events, but events which make man.

Foran then gave the decisions of both debates, deciding in favour of the affirmative in both cases.
